

Into the light

The sunshine casts shadows on the ground at your feet
and you watch the dancing light
The moment it takes you away to that land
That only the child in us can really understand
You're setting your foot again in that place
So long forgotten in the shadows of age

Like fog in the sun your fears fall away
You know you have always been free
Like a circle of light your life comes around
And you find all the chains that bound you on the ground

The sunshine casts shadows On the ground at your feet
and you watch the dancing light
The moment it takes you away to that land
That only the child in us can really understand

Taking a step you're going on
Into the light where all others have already gone
Taking a step you're going on
Into the light where all others have already gone

Text Copyright A. Kirsten Helmke ANNEA WORKS